Contents List

Part 1 (Eau Claire Mss AP, Eau Claire Micro 11, Eau Claire Tape 1, Micro 723, Audio 735A, River Falls Mss BL): Original Collection, 1945-1976

Physical Description: 20.4 c.f (44 archives boxes), 7 reels of microfilm (35 mm), and 4 tape recordings

Scope and Content Note

The papers in the collection are comprised of a variety of materials dealing with American Indians and related topics, in particular with Indians of Wisconsin and Minnesota. Evidence of both Mrs. Stone's activities as a social worker and community services consultant, and of her interests in children, youth, and education, is to be found in her papers. The emphasis of the collection is on education and health and social services topics. Also, her leadership and participation in conferences and meetings, government projects on all levels, and university programs to encourage and aid Indian high school and college students can be seen. Most of the collection is in the form of printed reference material and articles, including a large series of publications (newspapers and magazines) written for, by, and about Indians. Few truly personal papers are present.

The collection is organized into these categories:

Personal Papers, Government Agencies, Organizations, Conferences, Education Reference File, Publications, and Reference Files. A small quantity of additional material of Mrs. Stone's which was presented in 1971 via the University of Wisconsin-River Falls is housed at the Area Research Center at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. A listing of that material is at the beginning of the contents list. Mrs. Stone's interest in Indian affairs ranged far beyond her official duties, as the series of PERSONAL PAPERS shows. Her address books and mailing lists include one major list of several hundred individuals and organizations concerned about the American Indian. Although some gaps exist in her file of engagement calendars, they document such activities as her attendance at conferences and organizational meetings, and talks which she gave before other groups. The news clippings deal predominantly with Mrs. Stone's career, the honors and awards conferred upon her, and publicity about her work with various Indian organizations. The list of speeches is incomplete and contains only a portion of those speeches which Mrs. Stone gave in an official capacity, on behalf of the Division of Family Services. Speeches and publications files contain the text of a number of Mrs. Stone's talks, but in varying format, ranging from typescript copy to jottings on notecards.

The GOVERNMENT AGENCIES series has been divided into Federal and State headings, both of which are arranged alphabetically by agency title. Prominent under the federal heading are grant proposals, correspondence, memoranda, and reports which describe the given agencies' programs as they relate to American Indian needs. Mrs. Stone's role in some of these programs is unclear. In others, such as VISTA programs, it is evident that she participated actively in planning and training sessions. Much of the state heading consists of files created by the Division for Children and Youth and its successor, the Division of Family Services.

Correspondence, memoranda, case files, and various program files document Mrs. Stone's day-to-day activities in those divisions.

Material in the ORGANIZATIONS series has been arranged alphabetically by title of organization. Although Mrs. Stone maintained membership in many groups, it appears that she was on the mailing list of a number of additional groups. In the latter cases, files often are limited to promotional literature and requests for funds. As might be expected, materials are more substantial for those organizations in which Mrs. Stone assumed an important role. The files of the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Conference (later the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council, Inc.), which she helped found, are by far the most voluminous in the series. Minutes and related materials from GLITC meetings also contain informational material prepared in connection with the agenda for given meetings, incoming and outgoing correspondence, memoranda, grant proposals, program reports, and mailing lists. Also prominent among the records of this organization are files of the education committee, and various programs such as alcoholism treatment, community action, human development, nurse recruitment, and youth development.

The series entitled CONFERENCES contains papers from those meetings which Mrs. Stone attended as well as preliminary materials, such as schedules of events and speakers from gatherings which she did not attend. Documents from conferences include timetables; schedules; agenda; copies of proceedings, speeches, and publications; correspondence; and handwritten notes from sessions. From those conferences which Mrs. Stone helped organize, additional materials are present, including reports from planning meetings, lists of invitees, correspondence with speakers, financial files, and participants' post-conference evaluations. The series is arranged alphabetically by conference title.

Materials present in the EDUCATION REFERENCE FILE have been divided into two segments: those dealing with the broad topic of Indian education, which have been further divided into general and school-related headings; and student files. The general Indian education section contains reference material, correspondence, publications and reprints, reports, and notes pertaining generally to Indian education, and of interest to Mrs. Stone in preparation of speeches and new programs. Items have been arranged alphabetically by subject or topic. The school-related heading includes material relating specifically to Wisconsin and national grade and high schools, and colleges which offer American Indian programs, or accepted only Indian students.

Most of the files deal with the Wisconsin State Universities and University of Wisconsin systems and with Wisconsin grade and high schools, and contain correspondence, reports, minutes, and notes. Present in this heading are the records of Mrs. Stone's work with Indian education programs in the universities, recruitment of Indian high school graduates, and the records of WDIEO, Upward Bound, Pride, and PEP programs. This group of materials is also arranged alphabetically, by name of school. The student files, which are restricted and available only by prior arrangement, contain folders of information about individual college and vocational students, almost all of whom attended school in Wisconsin. These files include correspondence and memos, transcripts and school records, financial aid information, photographs, and other personal data.

The PUBLICATIONS series contains published periodicals, including newspapers, and near-print documents such as newsletters, which were either published by Indian groups and organizations, or are devoted to Indian life, concerns, and conditions. Both American and Canadian publications are represented, with local and regional imprints predominating. Most of the publications date from the 1960s and early 1970s, although the files are somewhat fragmentary. Also included in this series, which has been microfilmed for preservation purposes, is a bibliography of Wisconsin authors, 1836-1937, with personal annotations; and a reference publication from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

A variety of subjects are to be found within the REFERENCE FILES. Most of the material is printed or copied, and includes news releases, government documents, essays and theses, and typescript items. Correspondence is also included in many folders. The documents, essays and theses, and typescript items. Correspondence is also included in many folders. The bibliographies and reading lists section contains useful information for further research on American Indians. Items are filed alphabetically by subject, name of individual or tribe, or title of publication or article. Where a particular tribe or individual could be clearly identified, the file was given a specific, rather than general, title.
